Response for the New Deal II

This topic will discuss the reasoning of why the blacks in the text “Themes in the Dorothy West, Amateur Night in Harlem” act in a condescending manner towards whites. To start off the setting is the Apollo theater and the crowd is mostly blacks and they are watching several performers. The first performer is of Aryan (Not sure what this is but assuming European) race which the crowd did an okay applause. The second performer is a black woman, which the text describes as a horrendous performance yet the crowd goes ballistic for her. The third performer is a white man, and the crowd booed him and made him stop performing. There are some reasons for the behavior of only supporting blanks and denying white. Entertainment is defined as culture and identity for blacks. It stems from a time of racism where whites would harass blacks and entertainment is the very thing that allowed them to escape a putrid life. So when a white person tries to join in, it is seen as repulsive. The very thing that they want to escape is now contaminated, a reminder of a bad past. Revenge and malice plays a factor, they deny the white as a response to them denying the blacks through racism on the outside. Lastly unity could also be a reason, having a black only society increases trust, compared to a multiracial society would have less in common.
