Response for the Civil War

This discussion will talk about the sheer bravery of the people who fought in the civil war, from the texts of “Poem about Civil War Nurses”, and “Ambrose Bierce Recalls his Experience”. First of the Poem about civil war nurses describes a situation where there are so many deaths and injured soldiers, that many nurses simply quit. The poem talks about helping out even though she is terrified of the horrors of war. The nurses deal with a combination of the horrific injuries and families grieving for their dead sons make their work brave. In Ambrose’s experience, he describes the terrifying realities of war. He tells of a scene where the landscape is destroyed, filled with numerous corpses and pools of blood. He encounters a mutilated soldier asking for a mercy kill in which he does not fulfill. It shows that soldiers in times of need are incredibly brave, they are willing to go through such horrors and death for what they believe in.
